Helping elderly Lamas in the local communities in the Himalayas;

OBJECTIVE

I am quite satisfied with my Tibetan language-related work, hence the purpose is not to start an altogether different career but merely to be open to the possibility of accepting an interesting part-time position so as to learn new skills.

Short term: Except for cleaning and hard manual labour I would be consider any sort of work I have not done before for the duration of 3~6 months.

Long term: Ideally, the work would be challenging and involve the use of my languages and skills, e.g. translation, tour-guiding (for Japanese), driving, E-Commerce etc.

On the other hand, it might entail learning a new skill from scratch. I am always willing to try something new and – preferably – unusual. Surprise me!

Ideally, the duration of employment would be about 1~2 years on a Part-time basis.

EDUCATION

Brief educational history:

- Grammar School
- Courses in Electronics etc. (Able to solder, build circuits etc.)
- Study of philosophy and general linguistics at University level (2 years), subsequent informal study of Tibetan language and philosophy.

(I never had the opportunity to earn a degree, but possess immense work- and life-experience.)
